The Critical Thinking Process...how to put it to work for you!

The rapid proliferation of information technology has given rise to a dangerous mind set: If we install and utilize the latest tools, our management problems will be automatically solved. Frustration builds up when despite substantial investments in IT, problems linger on. Behind every successful management problem solving, there is a pattern of thinking that involves information technology only as a small component. This talk will give you a glimpse into that way of thinking.

Recommended Attendees:

- Human Resource Professionals
- Consultants
- Business Owners
- Anyone Responsible for Business Decisions
